At Olin, we are grateful for your service to our country, and we respect the hard work and top-quality training that have brought you to this point in your successful military career. Transitioning to your civilian career requires careful thought and planning. A business degree from a top-tier school like Olin can ease that transition and provide valuable skill sets to add to what you’ve learned in the service. Build on your success to date by sharpening your business acumen and meeting a new group of colleagues, faculty and staff all focused on helping you.

Why business? To attain success in the private sector, you must be able to analyze problems, make tough decisions under pressure, and communicate to achieve the objective — skills you have acquired through your military service. A business education rounds out that skill set and prepares you for any number of new career directions. At Olin, as in the military, the values of integrity, honor and commitment are foundational to our graduates’ success.

What sets us apart? Home to several top-ranked academic programs, Washington University in St. Louis has a long-standing reputation for excellence. Olin Business School, founded in 1917, has become a world leader in management education and applied research. Olin is known for its distinguished faculty, brilliant students, energized alumni, collaborative and engaging culture, and a middle-of-the-country location that’s convenient for job searches and business travel.

What is the Yellow Ribbon Post-9/11 G.I. Bill? To recognize the tremendous service and sacrifice of veterans, Washington University in St. Louis proudly supports the Yellow Ribbon Program, through which the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) and participating universities match dollar for dollar qualified tuition amounts. Honorably discharged U.S. veterans who have logged at least 36 months of active duty could be eligible for 100% tuition benefits. Bottom line, Olin Business School’s tuition may be paid in full for those who qualify.

What other financial aid is available? Financial aid is available from a variety of sources and has no bearing on whether a student meets admission criteria. Most active-duty or retired military candidates are eligible for basic benefits through the VA (www.gibill.va.gov), which for most will be approximately $17,500 in tuition annually. Olin is proud to offer additional scholarship opportunities, specifically reserved for students with military backgrounds, and admitted full-time U.S. veterans qualify automatically. Eligibility varies by program. To discuss financial aid options, contact Kyle Cronan, Associate Director of Graduate Business Financial Aid, at Cronan@wustl.edu or 314-935-6610.
What Degree Programs Are Offered? Olin Business School at Washington University in St. Louis offers some of the highest-valued degree programs in the nation. Our programs emphasize rigorous critical-thinking skills; applied learning; global competence; and communication and collaboration skills — advancing today’s business world and tomorrow’s global leaders. Find the degree program below that best fits your experience and career aspirations, or visit www.olin.wustl.edu/military for more information.

Click on the bold program names below to visit each degree’s web page for more information.

For Full-Time Students —

- Bachelor of Science in Business Administration (BSBA): Olin’s four-year undergraduate business program prepares you for a wide range of management careers. The curriculum focuses on major business disciplines, strategic problem solving, and applied learning with a global perspective.

- Full-Time Master of Business Administration (MBA): Distinguished by its academic excellence, world-class faculty, and emphasis on critical and creative thinking, this two-year program builds your analytical, leadership and cross-functional business skills.

- Master of Accounting (MACC): This two- to three-semester program equips you for careers in public or corporate accounting. Courses center on the technical aspects of financial accounting, auditing, taxation and policies that affect the accounting field. The program also helps prepare you for the Certified Public Accountant exam.

- Master of Science in Finance (MS/Finance): Another two- to three-semester degree, the MS/Finance program helps you gain the mathematical tools and strategic decision-making skills required for careers in corporate or quantitative finance. Courses provide in-depth training in securities research, asset management, derivative pricing and fixed-income investments.

- Master of Science in Supply Chain Management (MS/SCM): The third two- to three-semester specialized master’s program offered at Olin, the MS/SCM was developed in response to increased market demand for supply chain professionals. This program delivers a cutting-edge curriculum that highlights innovative theories, best practices, and interactive- and applied-learning techniques.

For Working Professionals —

- Professional MBA Program (PMBA): If you want to keep working while you earn your MBA, take advantage of Olin’s evening PMBA program that features a cohort system in which students attend classes with the same individuals for their first four semesters. It meets the same high standards — and academic rigor — as the business school’s full-time program and is taught by senior faculty members.

- Executive MBA Program (EMBA): Offered in St. Louis, Kansas City, and Shanghai, the program is ranked No. 2 worldwide by The Wall Street Journal. This weekend-based program for the mid-career student prepares you for complex, high-priority business challenges, such as organizational leadership, creativity and innovation, sustainable growth, and global and emerging markets. Note: GMAT scores are considered for this program but are not required.

- Master of Science in Leadership (MSL): Taught by senior Olin and Brookings Executive Education faculty, the program enhances the skill set required for Senior Executive Service — top-level U.S. government positions that oversee federal agencies. The program comprises separate, one- to five-day courses taken at The Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C. Note: GMAT scores are considered for this program but are not required.

Olin Business School is proud to offer premier business education for full-time students and working professionals. We value your military experience and would be pleased to discuss which Olin degree options are the best-suited for your future career. Begin the next part of your journey now. Contact us at military@olin.wustl.edu.