Based in St. Louis, informed by the world.

During the spring semester of your first year, you’ll spend six weeks “on the road,” where you’ll gain a better understanding of the context in which businesses operate. You’ll travel to the inner halls of the US government in Washington, DC; then to Barcelona, Spain, a European hub of business, trade and manufacturing; then to Paris, France, renowned for its culture and beauty; and finally to Lima, Peru, where economic development is the priority.

Six-week global immersion

St. Louis
You start with values-based, data-driven coursework along with core classes. Travel happens in spring of your first year.

Washington, DC
Experts at the Brookings Institution give you an insider’s view into the economies, institutions and culture of the United States, Europe and South America.

Barcelona
You’ll be steeped in managerial analysis and decision-making through strategic, hands-on projects, followed by a cultural immersion in Paris.

Lima
You experience this emerging, social market economy to understand business models and the link between strategy and operations.

St. Louis
You return to St. Louis ready for your summer internship and your second year of studies.

Teamwork skill development, communication coaching, and career coaching
A Typical Week
in a very atypical program.

At each stop, your days will be filled with activity, integrating lectures, experiential learning, teamwork and real-time feedback from faculty and experienced coaches. You’ll build a comprehensive and integrated understanding of business during this real-world, hands-on global experience.
