

April 2022

Olin Business Insights

Research highlights and thought leadership from Olin faculty.

 Washington University in St. Louis
OLIN BUSINESS SCHOOL

TACKLING THE OPIOID CRISIS: Olin Brookings Commission shares results of yearlong project with research and policy recommendations.

DATA SCIENCE

RUSSIA: The threat of cyberattacks is real, and everyone must be vigilant.

OPERATIONS

ETSY: Sellers' strike shows "one more instance of workers flexing their bargaining power."

FINANCE

RUSSIA II: Dean Mark P. Taylor walks us through what the financial sanctions mean.

ACADEMIA

TRUTH TIME: When was the last time you read an academic article in full?

Olin research in the media

Workers are back in offices. Why does it feel so weird?

Andrew Knight, The Washington Post

China's help will keep Hong Kong a beacon of finance and prosperity

David Meyer, South China Morning Post

Here's why you should let your mind wander — and how to set it free

Erik Dane, The Washington Post

Shohei Ohtani is what baseball needs

Patrick Rishe, Time

US drug supply is even more reliant on India than thought

Tony Sardella, Bloomberg

Events

May 3: Professional MBA Virtual Information Session

Register

May 3: Online MBA Information
Session: Faculty insights

Register

More Olin events

If you enjoy this newsletter, please forward it to friends or colleagues. They are welcome to sign up here.

